

I do not think that the CALEA should extend to ISPs and or managed VoIP providers either.

The FCC is trying to apply old telco wire tapping laws to mediums that have very different protocols to be considered.

Also, the cost for ISPs etc. to retro-fit to be CALEA compliant will be handed onto the customer.

Then the customer pays extra to be monitored like a criminal. That doesn't benefit me as a consumer!